LAWYER HARRINGTON GETS DIVORCE

DEATH BARES BOSTON MAN'S DUAL LIFE

LIVED WITH TWO MEN AS 'WIFE'

Joshua Seaver Want to Meet Dressmaker; Sister Discovered Trickery

The double drowning at Miami, Fla., in which Joshua Seaver, Boston manufacturer, and Rose B. Crocker, a Roxbury dressmaker, were swept to death, revealed the double life which the fifty-one-year-old man led with a woman of thirty-two.

It was discovered that Seaver, who left his wife and young son at their home, No. 112 Hyde street, Newton Highlands, had been living with Miss Crocker at the Green Tree Inn, Miami.

A peculiar feature of the case was the fact that the man's sister, Mrs. C. P. Dean, also of Boston, who was present at the report, was aware of continued on Page 2, Column 1.

LODGE PASS $7,868,000 NEW RAILROAD PRICE SET ON READY

Submits Compromise in Senate on Reservation for Article Ten

By International News Service. Washington, March 12.—A new compromise on Article X, is to be offered in the Senate by Senator Lodge, the Republican leader.

Lodge is to present a reservation to Article X, embracing changes in the phraseology of the original one, but with no alteration in "substance."

The new reservation was agreed to at a conference of Republican Senators held in Lodge's office.

Senator Swanson of Virginia called at the White House today and conferred with Secretary Tamm.

Senator Swanson went to see the President and returned with a message for the Virginia Senator.

"Rate making" was the explanation of Senator Swanson for his visit. He refused to comment on a report that he carried a message from the President to Democratic Senators.

The reservation as submitted was as follows: "The United States assumes no obligation to preserve the territorial integrity or political independence of any other country by the use of its military or naval forces, its resources or any form of economic discrimination, or to interfere in the domestic relations of nations, whether members of the league or not, under the provisions of Article X, or to employ the military or naval power of the United States under any article of the treaty."

The President's desire to make the treaty a campaign issue, the Senate expressed by the Republican leaders the latest move to break the deadlock on Article X, would prove acceptable to the Democratic side.

The tragedy was witnessed by 150 young men at a smoker in Earl Hall at Harvard.

At first it was thought Randall had been knocked out but when he did not respond to treatment a hurry call was sent to the hospital.

Love Diary Reveals Intense Jealousy

By JUDGE D. M. BROTHERS, Divorce Chamber of the Middlesex Circuit Court.

Chicago, March 12.—There is a sermon in every line of the diary of Ruth Randall, and I wish that every man, every woman and every boy and girl of an age to understand it could read that story.

When one reads her life story one hears the cries of a heart not only by nature, full of generous impulses, striving to do good. And one sees that heart crushed and forced into evil ways by the acts of others, more kindly well-meaning, some merely selfish, some with deliberate evil intent.

Every parent should take to heart the story of Ruth Randall, for it might be the daughter of any one of us who next is driven along that path. When we have better learned the lessons of good citizenship and our duties to each other, we shall have fewer such tragedies among girls who really try with all their might.

TIME MIT FIXED BY MAYOR

Property Owners Given to May 1 or Be Sold Out; Poll Tax June 1, or Arrest

Mayor Peters issued a double warning today to property owners owing 1919 taxes and to men liable for a poll tax in 1920.

They must settle up, specify or face the consequences—sale of property in one case, arrest in the other.

The statement is considered the most drastic that has come from him since he took office.

Property owners are warned to pay their 1919 taxes by May 1 under threat of sale of their property for failure to do so.

Men liable to a poll tax in 1920 are warned that poll tax will be levied on June 1 and "must be paid within two weeks or warrants will be issued for the arrest of those in arrears."

These are the shortest notices ever given for the payment of property tax and poll tax.

The poll tax will be levied on this year, on account of the bond to service men.

The Mayor says in his statement: "Taxes levied in 1919, both on personal and real estate."

FAIL TO INDICT HARRINGTON IN LIQUOR CASES

"No Bills" Against Man Accused of Carrying Less Than a Quart

The Federal Grand Jury today refused to indict eight men who had been arrested within the last two months on charges of violating the prohibition law.

They had been arrested by Revere officers on charges of carrying liquor or having liquor in their possession.

In each case the amount of liquor found was a quart or less, the failure of the grand jury to indict is in keeping with the ruling of the Commissioner, Hays, who, a few days ago, refused to prosecute two young men who were arrested in Boston for carrying a small quantity of liquor in their suit.

The grand jury returned twenty-eight true bills. Most of them were for larceny from interstate carriers and for possession of liquor. Indictments were also returned against six men who were recently arrested for the larceny of drugs from the S. & W. Warehouse.

The men whose cases of violating the prohibition law were thrown out were George W. Brown, George H. Sullivan, William H. Sullivan, James P. Flynn, Frank Clifford, Louis Arnesen, said Keeshigian and Mark J. Fleming.

New York, March 12.—An investigation was begun today into the death in a Columbia University boxing bout of Milton Sternfeld of 24 South Hawk street, Albany.

Sternfeld's antagonist was Andrew Luckett, also twenty-three years a sophomore in architecture, of West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street, who is held on a technical charge of homicide.

The tragedy was witnessed by 150 young men at a smoker in Earl Hall at Harvard.

that she had gone to Florida to be with her brother, and was horrified to learn that he was living with a woman. At first Mrs. Bean intended to leave, but decided to remain and await developments.

It was found that the couple had been living for a month near as "Mr. and Mrs. Justice Seaver of Boston," as the lady said. They had been acquainted in the past, but had not come into the limelight, as in 1911 he paid a fine of $50 for riding a bicycle through the streets of New York at night while wearing nothing but a shirt. His excuse was that he was on his way to a bathing resort, departing with clothing as he liked to feel the air on his back.

CAME HERE FROM MAINE.
As far as can be learned, Seaver and Miss Crocker had been acquainted for a short time. The woman came to the city a year ago from Herndon, Maine, where her parents live on a farm. She obtained employment with a Boston dressmaking establishment, going to New York when the business was moved there. Later Miss Crocker returned to Boston and did dressmaking in her room at the home of Mrs. Charles E. Hanson, No. 16 Cape street, Roxbury.

Mrs. Hanson today said she had never seen Seaver. Some time ago Miss Crocker said her health was failing and it would be necessary for her to go to Florida.

Three Old Shirts Bring $15.25 at Auction

Three soiled shirts, originally valued at $1.50 each, sold for $15.25 at the auction sale of accumulated parcels post packages in a Federal Building today.

A short time later four laundered shirts brought only $2.25, while an overcoat was knocked down for $4.25. The auction was the first of two yearly sales of goods which could not be delivered because of lack of addresses, or other reasons. It was conducted by Auctioneer Michael J. Murphy on the fourth floor of the Federal building.

A throng was on hand and bidding was spirited, eight dollars being bid for the entire lot being sold in the first lot.

Because of the noise made by the bidders, Deputy Marshal Duane requested Auctioneer Murphy to suspend operations until Judge Martin Blashaw changed a jury in a nearby courtroom.

Three sets of fire chains, 200 ft. each, were sold for $1.50, and a box of dry goods sold for $1.50.

The sale will continue until the goods are sold.

Feared That Many More Died When Tornado Swept the Ozarks

Springfield, Mo., March 12.—With fourteen known dead and several missing, grave fears were held today that re-establishment of communication with isolated Ozark points would add more to the death toll of the tornado which late Thursday swept the "Shepherd of the Hills" country.

Three were killed at Nevada, where the force of the storm was first felt. The full force of the storm was apparently spent in Turkey Creek valley.

The little village of Nevada was practically wiped out and eleven are known to have lost their lives there, several of the dead being children.

PLEADS TO STOP SHIP SALES

Wait Until Congress Can Act, Says Matthew Hale in Letter to Committee

By International News Service.
Matthew Hale, of the American policy, and not the British, has pleaded to stop ship sales to the "Republic of the North Sea," a representative of commercial organizations, requesting that the House of Representatives should not pass a bill to stop ship sales until Congress has had time to act.

Hale's letter called attention to the sale of American steam ships of the line of the United States, of which had been sold to French and Belgian interests since February 25.

If the shipping board continues its policy of selling the best of these ships there will be no chance of developing these trade routes (Atlantic and Pacific, coastwise and Caribbean Sea routes) of which the United States has a large share, because there will be no ships to sail.

"Lord Inchcape," Hale observed, "speaking at the annual meeting of the Pan-American and Oriental Steam Navigation Company in London, said: 'If the United States is not to tax the ships, it will be to the detriment of the shipping industry.'"

Argument on the petition for the dissolution of the corporation, granted William Randolph Hearst against the sale of the ex-terminus ship by the Shipping Board today was postponed for one week.

ACCUSE BANDIT

Youth Who Shot Brighton
Policeman Is Identified
by Detective

George Rice, alias Alfred White, 31-year-old assailant of Patrolman William A. Moore of the Brighton police station on the night of July 13 last, is under arrest. Recognized as a desperate chief, he is charged with the murder of two men, one of them a detective sergeant of the Washington police department.

Today the Probation National Detective Agency, acting for District Attorney Pettibone, located Rice in the jail at Washington. Under the name of John McHenry he had been arrested charged with killing two in Washington.

TRAGEDY AT CAPITAL

About 6 o'clock on the evening of December 12 last, Joseph McHenry entered the automobile accessory store of Wallace Mulcare, in Washington, produced a revolver and ordered Mulcare, who was behind the counter, to turn over his cash. Instead of responding Mulcare reached into the cash drawer for a gun and was immediately shot and killed by McHenry.

An hour later Detective Sergeant J. E. Armstrong, accompanied by the driver of a patrol wagon, attempted to apprehend McHenry at Union Station and was shot three times by McHenry before the latter was hit out with a blackjack by Armstrong's companion.

Armstrong lived for several days, but the wounds proved fatal. The police obtained a full confession from McHenry, who has been indicted for murder in the first degree, and is now awaiting trial.

SHOT POLICEMAN

He shot Patrolman Moore when the officer attempted to arrest him and two others as they were in the act of looting the cash register and

Assists Adversary, Is Freely by Court

"This appears to have been a gentleman's fight and I demand the defendant," said Judge Bowditch in the Municipal Court today. Testimony showed that after an encounter in the office of the Marine Firemen's Union at No. 3 Long Wharf, Moore had assisted his adversary to a washroom and fastened him to clean his wounds.

The trouble started over a sign, on one of the union's officers, according to witnesses. Emanuel Perry, the complainant, admitted he had been drinking before he demanded admission to the private office.

One of Moore's duties as an official of the union is to keep intruders from the private office, he said.

Limitless Patterns of Delicacy and Beauty Lure Discriminating Buyers

The blouses for Spring are joyous in all the colors of the rainbow. Since dark blue is the universal favorite for the suit, this is particularly well. And, this Spring, as shown by The Shepard Stores, the overblouses and the blouse reign supreme. The wall.

AN ADORABLE MODEL.
One of the most admired models was of Bermuda, with elaborate jet and white head trimming. It was an overblouse, extending several inches below the waist, made of seersucker, and possessed a dainty little head trimming behind in suggestive fashion. Nearby, also a model blouse, was one of white, with black jet trimmings and two dainty little tassels of jet. An Adriatic blue blouse, in the same shop, was embroidered in delicate embroidery, a touch of the oriental very much in evidence. Embroidery of grapes, beads and raised from the geometric, gave a suggestive touch to a dainty little garment.

Anyone would not be doing the Shepard display sufficient justice if he did not say a word about the chocolate blouse. This material, used for a couple of years now, is fairly new in blouses. It commands itself by its blouses, however, as it has been durable, and, at the same time, may be worn late into the Spring, as the weaves make it cool. Blouses of this material, and overblouses, in all styles are shown.

FOR THE YOUNG DAUGHTER.
The mother with the little young daughter to outfit for school or college, will find in tub blouses, at Shepard's, just what she wants. These are moderately priced; they come hand made, for less than ten dollars, and include real flat lace in the trimming. Others are of organza and batiste, with dainty little accordion ruffles. Blouses in another material that commands itself for the less expensive blouse for the school girl.

One of the models of orchid, perhaps, or of pink lavender, at Hovey's has drawn forth much admiration from women this fashion week. One evening frock, a favorite in this window, is of this shade, which extends itself to sport skirts of plain satin, and of satin with the finest accordion pleats. One little dance frock, with its bodice of orchid silk, falls in lady folds from just below the hips, the lace overcoat gathered to the material, and draping in undershirt of the silk. A little blouse of the same color in georgette is gathered simply at the round neck.

But Hovey's shows other things than clothes, in their windows, for the woman shopper. These other things have gone straight to the heart of her who loves to buy for the home. The new Hovey's rug, for example. These are particularly good reproductions of Oriental originals, and sell at a price surprisingly low. The Spring mirror, again, are a joy. A rosebud pattern, for one, just cries out for a dainty bedroom. There are choices for all needs.

AS TO WINDOW SHOPPING.
There is on kind of shopping which a woman may do and not be presented with a bill at the end of the month. There is one kind of shopping which it is well for a woman to do reflectively before she dips into her pocketbook. That is window shopping. At Filene's, this fashion week, there is ample opportunity for the hesitating shopper to see what she wants, in good daylight, and to look before she makes up her mind of the things shown in the window case. That was a dainty white of soft brown, made most originally. Its sleeves were fashioned of drape, laid on crossways, with each separate piece, not more than two inches square.

Wide Choice of Stunning Effects in New Fashions wide, pleated at the edges. A deep collar, a miniature cape in itself, finished the wrap at the neck. This was a most luxurious garment, suited for afternoon wear. Blouse, as shown in the Filene window, are the newest, things in Spring millinery. One of these, with trimmings of the same, was wide brimmed, a hot fit for immediate wear. PAYNE INSISTS U. S. SELL SHIPS

Protest Filed Against Sale of Vessels to Be Used to Compete with American Boats

By Universal Service.
Washington, March 12.—Chairman John Barton Payne of the Shipping Board concluded his testimony before the Senate commerce committee with a lengthy appeal for a cessation of government operation of merchant marine and for the sale of American boats of more than 1,500 tons.

Simultaneously the committee received a communication from shipping men and producers in twenty-two States protesting against the sale of American vessels, particularly those which have been purchased recently by foreign concerns, directly from the Shipping Board.

This blanket protest was sent to Senator Henry Jones, of Washington, chairman of the Commerce Committee by Matthew Hale, the shipowner representative in Washington. The letter points out that seventeen ships of a type "particularly useful in building up the West Indian and South American trade" have been sold to foreigners and would enter

Finds Boston Women Becoming Masculine

Women are becoming more masculine in their methods as a result of being forced to push their way through rush hour crowds in order to obtain a seat in elevated train, according to Colonel A. W. Foreman, an assistant chief of staff at army headquarters, who has recently arrived in Boston.

He finds this characteristic much more marked in Boston women than in those of other sections of the country. "We ought to share with women the opportunity of keeping them feminine in their methods," he says, "but this pushing and shoving, and the crowding in crowds rushing for a seat in a new machine, is entirely out of the new life in a new age."

late almost immediate competition with American vessels. The letter stated that no more steel cargo-carrying ships had been disposed of definitely determine its policy. The sum and substance of Chairman Payne's testimony was that the government should get out of the shipping business as soon as possible and should sell all its fleet. This contention Henry Jones firmly and despite the fact that yesterday he admitted the government had made a total profit of $25,000,000 in its operation of the merchant marine up to June, 1919.

It is known, moreover, that profits since that time have brought the total to date to nearly $100,000,000.

WASH blouses are decidedly refreshing in their simplicity and daintiness—especially as a change from dark woolen dresses or dark silk waists of winter. There are piquant models for the younger girls and simply made and becoming styles for older women.

Jane—Novel and charming is this youthful blouse of crisp white lawn. The scalloped collar and smartly cut cuffs are of colored poplin. 3.00

Betty—Soft snowy voile with fine tucks, hemstitching and best of all dainty val lace on the collar and cuffs and just a touch of hand embroidery. 3.00

Phyllis—Fine voile makes this blouse with hemstitched roll collar, smart revers and turnback cuffs. 3.00

Dora—The women who favor high collars will appreciate the trimness of this voile blouse, with hemstitched turnover collar, cuffs, ruffles and seams. 3.00

Barbara—Frills, of course, for they are so smart this spring. They edge the becoming collar and cuffs and go down the front of this voile blouse as well. 3.00

Come, look and exclaim over all the gay, entrancing things of Spring

FROM the tiniest Spring frocks for tiny girls to the most elaborate gowns for women—everything is here. It is a Spring of more than usual interest. There is so much newness—not in garments alone but also in the accessories.

Special attention has been paid to youthful suits, frocks and coats. There are bolero suits with a dash about them that is quite fascinating. Tailored suits of jersey, a bit boyish in line, vie with them for popularity.

Taffeta frocks, youthful and altogether charming, are here in great variety. There are those with ruffles, tucks, or frills—all with a newness that appeals to the younger generation.

Sport coats—jaunty as they can be—are here in soft polo cloths; narrow leather belts and big pockets are their only trimming.

Women will find frocks of crisp taffetas and softer ones of satin. Dolman wraps are smart for women this Spring—and the choice of them in navy blue serge and tulle is great.

The suits are so beautifully tailored that they have no end of smartness about them—braided bound, pin tucked, rippled and others severely plain. Sport suits of the new crepe weaves are a delight.

And when it comes to beautiful blouses and new slip-on sweaters, smart hats, new veils, long gloves, crisp neckwear, Spring furs, new pumps and oxfords, fine silk stockings—they are all here—to meet your every need.

EUGENIA

BORN to queenly honors is she who bears the name of Eugenia. Its origin is in the Greek language, where it is derived from a word meaning well born. Its modern adaptation by the French into Eugénie is famous throughout the world since it is borne by one of the most illustrious women of history, the former Empress Eugénie. Its popularity in France is enormous and it is Anglified version, Eugenia, has great vogue in England and America.

Its history dates back from Egeus, a very old Greek writer, but Eugenia was named most popular in classical times. It was carried on as Egeus was by the Romans. Egeus was a professor, and another Eugenia was Bishop of Toledo in the thirteenth century. It has been a favorite as a masculine name and has been borne by men of power and prominence. Eugenia was the name of the thirteenth-century Slavov called the prince of the great Egeus, who was a virgin Roman martyr, about whom there is very little known. The Empress Eugenia's history is too well known to need recital here.

The first and only Eugenia that history records bore the birth of the great Egeus was a virgin Roman martyr, about whom there is very little known. The Empress Eugenia's history is too well known to need recital here.

Eugenia's talkative story is told over the loss of Alsace and Lorraine has made her one of the most tragic figures. It was she who said that a son who was dead, after years, could be removed from the tomb. The names of those who believed provinces would be found again.

SHIP LOSS LAID TO DANIELS

Confusion Over Convey System Gave U-Boats a Big Lead, Says Admiral Sims

"millions now living will never die"

Judge Rutherford

In a free lecture in the Waldorf Theatre Sunday afternoon it will be conclusively proven by many Biblical prophecies which have been fulfilled during the past four years, and from many others still in course of fulfillment, that hundreds of thousands now living in Greater Boston will never die

"In this instance do not deceive yourself into believing that 'where ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be wise,' because life everlasting on this earth as a perfect human being will depend upon the individual knowledge and understanding of, and acquiescence in the rules of conduct that are to govern the world in its reconstruction now in progress, and ever after."

Judge Rutherford

of New York City Bar

In a startling and comforting lecture, "Millions Now Living Will Never Die," offers a reasonable and satisfying solution of the many questions raised by the conflicting claims of orthodox creeds, Sir Oliver Lodge, Sir Conan Doyle, Christian Science practitioners and the various faith healing sects. No matter what your present ideas on this great question may be, you should hear Judge Rutherford in the

Ouija Boards Blamed For Ills of Students

AN AFFAIR which, Jan. 29th—"Ouija boards are becoming more plentiful in the fraternity and society houses and in the rooms of independent students than Bible or prayer books and more frequently consulted," declared a member of the faculty of the University of Michigan, commenting on a report he had just received that two young women in his class had been obliged to leave school and place themselves in the hands of nerve specialists because of their devotion to the ouija board.

Dr. Warren Forester, head of the university health service, admitted that there had been a great influx of nervous students requiring later for treatment.

One city nerve specialist said he had treated university women for extreme nervousness and that their difficult cases seemed to have been caused by too close association with the ouija board and too great belief in its workings.

If the above warning is heeded then it is further proof that the entire population of earth is menaced by ouija boards and like paraphernalia. This menace is due chiefly to a lack of knowledge. The people should have the entire truth on the subject, and that is my only purpose in writing on it.

J. F. RUTHERFORD

Judge Rutherford,

favorably known in all capital cities of Europe

During the past two years Judge Rutherford has lectured in nearly every large city in Europe and America on "Where Are the Dead?" and his lectures on "Millions Now Living Will Never Die" and "Talking With the Dead" are outgrowths of that lecture, made possible and necessary by the fulfillment of certain prophecies during and since the war, and as messages of comfort to the many millions harassed by the enormous casualties in the world war and subsequent epidemics.

TALKING WITH THE DEAD

Can the Living Talk With the Dead?

Statement by Judge Rutherford

In the living talk with the dead? Sir Conan Doyle, his colleagues, many distinguished clergymen and others, answer yes. The twenty-four prophets of God, the Lord Jesus and His twelve Apostles, according to the inspired testimony set forth in the Bible, answer emphatically No.

Sir Conan Doyle and his colleagues say the soul is immortal—there is no death; hence the dead are able to communicate with the living. Satan said the same thing; and Jesus said Satan is a liar and that this statement was the beginning of lies. (John 8:44.) Satan is the arch-enemy of the human race, Jesus is the Savior of the world, and through Him alone can man get life everlasting. Which one will you believe?

Sir Conan Doyle and his colleagues claim that they hear voices, receive automatic writings through ouija boards, table tipping, etc., and that these emanate from some unseen power. This we do not dispute. The Bible explains that this power is not exercised by the spirits of dead men, but by demons—fallen angels or foul spirits—who were disobedient in Noah's day and whom God restrained in the darkness around this earth. (See 2 Peter 2:4; 1 Peter 3:18-20; Jude 6.) These demons have exercised their power since the time of the flood until the present time through the instrumentality of mediums. The day of their judgment is now here; hence they exercise greater power and are taking advantage of a grief-stricken world to aid Satan in carrying out his first lie—"there is no death."

Sir Conan Doyle and many distinguished clergymen have been and are being deceived by the demon, because they believe and teach the doctrine of immortality of the soul, which is supported by nothing except Satan's falsehood. (Genesis 3:4.) Immortality is promised as a great reward to those who faithfully follow Jesus, even unto death. (1 Corinthians 15:50-53.) The dead are unconscious; they know not anything; they cannot think, smell, hear, speak or do anything whatsoever. (See Psalm 115:17; 146:4; Ecclesiastes 9:5, 10.) This being true, it would be impossible for them to communicate with the living.

Nothing is more plainly taught in the Scriptures than the resurrection of the dead, i. e., that in due time all the dead shall be awakened and given a trial for life. Such positively disproves that the dead are conscious and are able to communicate with the living, because the resurrection of the world has not yet come.

These so-called communications from the dead are in no wise beneficial to man. The messages are never comforting or uplifting; but, on the contrary, they are often vicious and vile and lead men into crime. Great numbers of men are being made insane by the influence of these demons. Satan and the other demons are thus blinding and defrauding mankind in order to turn their minds away from the great blessings God has in store for them.

This so-called science of communicating with the dead is nothing but demonism, or spiritism, and is a menace to the welfare of mankind, the overwhelming proof of which is set forth in my new book, "Talking With the Dead."

AN EXPERIMENT OF THE FUTURE

Narration of Life, Dark, but Still Fascinating

He gave a snort of scorn and composed himself to sleep again; meanwhile Diana had left the garden and was waiting at an easy pace, which she increased as she came down to the sea shore. It was very lovely there at this particular afternoon hour—the tide was coming in, and the long shining waves rolled up one after the other in smooth lines of silver. The sea-shore in the distance was a pale blue, and the patches like purple gold.

The air was soft and warm but not oppressive, and as the solitary woman lifted her eyes to the peaceful blue sky arched like a sheltering dome, she felt the pleasant breeze from the sea, and was sure that the sun, gliding in the sky, was

Dear Me! It would be much cheaper for most of us to migrate to Dahomy than to keep on buying out our fathers by the car!

The disappointing thing about quickly entering the art of book-making is that also so quickly entering the average man's life and work is the knowledge that he can give him a higher education on the subject.

A man is never really old until he has lost his desire for the food that makes him dyspeptic, then he has lost his power and courage to make a fool of him.

Just like the making of a woman, to marry a man to reform him—though any man who has had the energy and initiative to make a "man" for himself is not a man, but a woman, and a woman is a man for himself.

The concept of men to call a woman's vanity case her "manly utensils"—when, as every girl knows, it's nothing but an innocent little "repair kit!"

Rheumatism is caused by poison, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of getting the blood of this impurity, damp and chilly, cold weather to skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and at length fail to eliminate this uric acid, which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles, causing stiffness, aches and pain called rheumatism.

This is said to eliminate any acidity in the system, and to bring normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Measures That Would Cure Most of the Troubles and Tendencies Which Distress and Alarm Us Today

- (1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
- (2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
- (3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put public offices as nearly

- as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
- (4) To elect Federal Judges, including Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
- (5) To apply the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national matters.

Pershing Grows in Favor as Country Studies Him

The position of General Pershing since his return from France has not been an easy one. He came home facing two dangers—first of being lionized to impossible heights and then dropped, a la Coney; or that of being ignored.

He has avoided both. In France he carried unprecedented responsibility manfully, and he is now making a strong impression throughout the country, not merely as might be expected on account of his military reputation, but on account of his sound common sense.

He has appeared in public when necessary, but has not played to the gallery. He has spoken in public when appropriate, but has always spoken modestly and straight to the point.

Take, for example, his recent appearance at the loyalty meeting in New York City Hall. What could have been more fitting than what he said there? It is classic in its simplicity:

It isn't enough to say "I am an American," or "I am patriotic." You have got to demonstrate it, live it, exercise it day and night, working and sleeping.

Patriotism is a part of the soul which should reside with you always and be a living, breathing part of you and your very life. Real patriotism is not selfish. It means that we must devote our lives to the service of others.

We must remember always the great principles that were handed down to us by our forefathers; the great principles for which they fought and struggled and died. These have come down to us without being altered or changed, and it is for us now to transmit them to posterity if we are in reality true Americans.

And again:

We must insist upon the people who live under the protection of our flag knowing about our institutions and subscribing to them if they are to remain under its protection.

Communities must be self-purging with the standard of education. It is no longer enough to say, "I believe in the Constitution of the United States." We must believe that the safety of American institutions depends upon the Americanization and integrity of the communities in which we live.

These are not unusual instances of the workings of his mind. Whenever he speaks he says something of genuine worth. He thinks sensibly and patriotically and speaks clearly and frankly.

If you would be amused, contrast his speeches with those of another military man now making daily bids for public favor. Observe the contrast.

If the people want any kind of military man for their next President they should certainly not select a man like General Wood, who has never done anything without the aid of a calcium light and a press agent, and who never says anything with the faintest gleam of intelligence.

If they want a military man, they should select a man like Pershing, who has achievement back of him and intelligence as part of his equipment.

Naval Precautions Which Ought to Be Taken NOW

Secretary Daniels is doubly right in urging for the United States "incomparably the best navy in the world."

We should have the best navy if we STAY OUT of a League of Nations.

We should certainly need a tremendous navy if we entered the present League of Nations, because that "league" is now busy sowing the seeds of future wars.

The same wise founders of our Republic who counseled us so earnestly against entangling in the intrigues of the Old World were at equal pains to impress upon us the need of preparedness for defense.

The conditions of preparedness have changed since their day. We need to be strong on the sea—strong with ships of war; strong in merchant ships. We also need to be strong with ships that are in the air, for in the next war their power may be commanding, although the fathers did not foresee all these new conditions. Their advice remains incontestably sound in principle.

It is her debt. Our taxes are heavy. Wise men cry justly for relief. Is it proper, then, to incur at once the high cost of great enlargement? May it not safely be deferred until some of our present war burden shall have been lightened?

So we would be to take chances. The house usually catches fire after the insurance has lapsed.

Good chances is not unusual in this country. Providence inclined to be generous to us.

There are, however, some chances we ought not to hazard. We ought not to let other nations, which may become hostile, seize all the strategic naval bases in the open seas, all the distant sources of fuel supply, all the great initial advantages in a naval war.

We ought not to delay the organization of a trained and ready reserve. American ingenuity under high pressure can do much with machinery, but it takes training to fit men for efficiency aboard ships.

Above all, we ought not to repeat the stupendous waste of our war-time experience with air craft. The cost of keeping a trained air force continually equipped with the best vehicles would be repaid in the gains from commercial flying, leaving the insurance as a bonus.

These things would involve an impossible burden at once, heavy though our other burdens are. Lack of them might, in the world's present disturbed state, prove unbearably costly.

More Truth Than Poetry

Her Faith and Her Fate

By S. E. KISER

OTHER people may not grieve
When you have an aching heart;
Others never may perceive
The perfection of your art.

She, when others wish you ill,
Will be praying for you still;
Folly may have dragged you low,
But her mother-love will live;

Though you cause her tears to flow,
She will listen and forgive;
When fairer friends forget
And when Fortune smites no more,

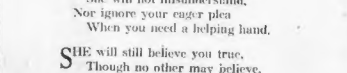

Her fond faith will linger yet,
Still as steadfast as before,
No one else may see or care
If your chance has not been fair.

But she will not fail to see;
She will not misunderstand,
Nor ignore your eager plea
When you need a helping hand.

SHE will still believe you true,
Though no other may believe,
And she wins a triumph through
Every triumph you achieve;

It is her heart that is torn
When your actions bring you scorn;
If you let your footstep turn
To the depths where demons dwell,

It is she that has to burn
In an everlasting hell.

BEGINNING TO BE TEARFUL.
America is going to present to France a nation representing liberty in distress. Unless conditions change right away the sculptor can use
Max Corman for his model.

DEAR K. C. B.—I heard a sermon today, and the preacher raved about any woman who had a dog for a pet. Just you know how some preachers are. And anyway, K. C. B., I want to tell you a story. I am a saleswoman in a dry goods store, and a woman came in and bought complete winter outfit for seven children belonging to a destitute neighbor who had just buried one of the little brood and whose other children were ragged and hungry. And she paid the bill out of her own pocketbook. And while I was wrapping up the big bundle of clothes she petted her cute little dog, which she stood on the counter. While she was doing this a thoughtless bystander said: "I'd be ashamed to pet a dog when there are so many children needing love." And I said: "Surely she has earned the right to love a dog, too." I thank you.

IN THE first place.
WHEN A preacher gets up.
AND WILL respond.

AND RAVES about women.
AND LET'S be glad.
WHO HAVE dogs for pets.

HE'S JUST wanting his time.
AND TELLING his flock.
THAT HE doesn't like dogs.

AND THEY probably scare him.
WHEN HE makes his call.
AND THE reason they scare him.

IS BECAUSE HE doesn't like them.
AND WE should worry.
AND IT isn't a virtue.

IF HE doesn't like them.
AND IT isn't a virtue.
AND IT isn't a virtue.

IF WE do like them.
WE WERE made that way.
AND JUST for you.

AND JUST for me.
LET'S MAKE this column.
A COLUMN of thanks.

IN THAT the Lord.
IN HIS infinite wisdom.
MADE YOU and I.

A LOVER of dogs.
AND LET'S be glad.
THAT WE have room.

WITHIN our hearts.
FOR LITTLE dogs.
AND ALLEY cats.

AND ANY old horse.

THAT LIVES and breathes.
AND WILL respond.
TO AN outstretched hand.

AND LET'S be glad.
THAT SOMETHING warm.
STIRS OUR insides.

WHEN SOME stray dog.
WILL LOOK us over.
AND WAG his tail.

OR SOME old horse.
WILL RUB his nose.
AGAINST OUR coats.

AND LET'S be glad.
WHEN WE've done this.
THAT AFTER all.

THE BIGGEST share.
OF THE love we have.
Goes out to kids.

AND LET'S not worry.
THAT THE other fellow.
WASN'T MADE that way.

LET'S BE sorry for him.
FOR IT'S not his fault.

COMPARES LIMITS OF MAYFLY TO MANKIND

By Garrett P. Serviss

MEDITATING on some of the most recent astronomical research is giving rise to, which could be easily solved if the existence of the human race were not so limited in time, the curiously suggestive lot of the little winged people of the air, called the Ephemeras, or Mayflies, came into my mind.

When we consider that we ourselves are also ephemerals, only of a higher sort, we can find much worth thinking about in the strange story of the mayflies. It may typify, to a surprising degree, our own situation, with regard to limitations of knowledge.

Knows Not the Sun

The mayfly is born after sunset and dies before sunrise. There are some species that live longer and that see daylight, but what is said above applies to the typical mayfly. It knows not the sun nor the day. Yet light is fatally attractive to it.

To such creatures, even, perhaps if they possessed our degree of intelligence, half of the characteristic phenomena of the physical world would be unknown. They would take a one-sided view of nature, which, nevertheless, would seem to them to include all there was. But can we be sure that we see all sides? To a being as much more highly organized than a man as the latter is higher than a mayfly, and existing proportionally longer, it is entirely reasonable to suppose that the world and the universe may have sides, or aspects, utterly inconceivable to us, though we live in the midst of them.

Too Ephemeral

Our existence is too ephemeral to include in the cycle of experience any actual knowledge of past geologic epochs. In such cases, however, our intelligence, almost infinitely surpassing our physical powers, enables us to expand, in an intellectual sense, the life of the race over spaces of time lying outside the range of experience, as if the mayflies, by developing such powers, could read on the dark face of the earth where their night dances whirl, something which would raise in their stilled minds a picture of daylight and of sunlit landscapes.

It is only the mind that can expand existence and lift any creature out of the waste more or less resembling that of the ephemeral, which is common to all material beings. But with all his brain power and intellectual development, man still finds himself, in many ways, hampered with the timelessness of the mayfly.

Letters to the Editor

Hit Nail on Head

Editor Boston American:
Your recent editorial, "War Is Over and the Senate Should Let Nation Get Down to Business," is right to the point—it hits the nail on the head, as they say. It is about time for Congress to tell President Wilson in plain words that cannot be mistaken that this is not a one-man government and that the government of this country is vested in Congress, and Congress only.

JOSEPH RUBENSTEIN.

Poll Tax Collecting

Editor Boston American:
As your paper is the people's paper, I thought I would write you about the poll tax collection. In Dorchester all the service men are receiving notices. They are being sent them to the homes of the dead sailors and soldiers. It shows that there is no system even at the office and I think it ought to be investigated.

THOMAS SMITH.

Detective Stories

The first noted teller of detective stories was Edgar Allan Poe. Following him came Gaboriau and A. Conan Doyle. We have had all sorts of detectives, but now comes the business detective in the person of Ben Bodet in a series of "1920 style" detective stories by Will Fingers, illustrated by Harrison Fisher. They are trying to untangle for yourself the mystery of "Broad on the Water," the latest Fingers story. It is in this month's Cosmopolitan.

Touching Solitude
Mosquito Lawsuit
Weight Your Brain
Different Diaries
By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1920.
Observe solitude for the poor. Coal miners ask a wage increase of 60 per cent. It is cut down to 25 per cent. For you are told, "Landlords must buy coal. Increase the price of coal, and you increase rent." Think of the poor rent payers.

Very touching, but: The coal miner gets about ninety cents a ton. Sixty per cent. increase would mean fifty-four cents more. If a landlord added only increased cost of labor to his tenement house rent bill it would amount to about ten cents a month for each tenant. The trouble is that when you raise the worker's wages fifty-four cents the coal dealer raises his price two dollars and a half or more, and the landlord raises his five dollars. It is not what you pay workmen that makes the difference.

A sailor, Henderson Lee Barry, wants five thousand dollars' damages from his employers because he was badly bitten by mosquitoes, and the ship's cabin would give him no relief.

This is mentioned because new, dog bites, going by bulls, but never mosquito bites, have caused law suits.

Should the sailor get his five thousand dollars, the company would think seriously about buying up mosquito wire.

And this leads to meditation on the theory of reincarnation.

Suppose Armour, Rockefeller, George F. Baker, Thomas F. Ryan and Dan Guggenheim should suddenly burst through miraculous revelation that in their next earthly incarnation they would appear as little brown babies on the banks of the Nile—whose babies are neglected and the flies swarming on their poor diseased eyes, often blind them.

Can't you imagine Armour, Guggenheim, et al. crying with a loud voice, "What, I am to be an Egyptian baby exposed to Egyptian flies? Well, before that happens I will spend a little of this money wiping out flies in Egypt." They would do it. Learned statesmen would be sent to clean up the Egyptian flies in which their breed, a good military supply for Egyptian babies would be increased, with free trained nurse service on the banks of old Nile. A successful law suit often improves living conditions in the reincarnation, with no guarantee as to the next habitation, would do more.

Only two more States needed to put woman suffrage in the Constitution. That an amendment regarding the rights and interests of white women should come so long after the amendment giving the vote to black men is not the surprising part. The surprise, on considering the men that elected the earth, is that woman suffrage comes this century instead of the next.

Before the Toledo Sales Company's office in Frank Munger's Grand Building, is a shiny weight machine with this inscription: "Weight free."

Men and boys stand in line—women don't—so see how much their bodies weigh. Further across is a big public library in which, "free," you may ascertain the weight of your mind, and even add to it. But nobody stands in line there. Various problems will be settled when the inhabitants of this magnificent country take, on the average, as much interest in their brains as in their bodies.

At least twenty-five million haughty souls are reading "The Diary of Ruth Randall," a lady who killed her husband, the man with whom she was living, discharging that man's wife. The diary, telling how the lady really worked herself up to the pitch of murder and suicide, is worth reading, for various reasons.

It proves that "the wages of sin is death," and sometimes even for the gentleman in the case. That is useful. It is well for men to be reminded that women sometimes decline to go alone. The diary also proves the literary value of intense emotion. Ruth Randall wrote almost 50,000 words for "Capitola" before she was put in jail. It reminds one of the "Looking for Captain Homer," the story of a man who was looking for his wife's face when she was suspected that he was getting tired. It reminds one of a queer way of "Katie" "On Looking Into Chapman's Homer."

Some other millions are reading the confessions of a girl who killed her older sister, because the sister tried to drive her to an orphan home.

While diaries and confessions are in the limelight, try the diary and meditations of Marcia Annell, or Amelia Fisher. You will find interesting differences between the Roman Roman and Ruth Randall, between the diary and the diary. Marcia Annell, and also Amelia, disclaiming the mental horror.
